

Get stuck in!

What would the Gherkin taste like? Or the OXO Tower? Is the Treasury made of lolly or dough? Would you gobble up the Royal Mint or feast on Victoria sponge...?

...find out what a huge, edible 3D map of London looks and tastes like at Eat London, a free outdoor feast, produced by Lift

Saturday 28 April 2007
at Trafalgar Square, from 12.30 – 4.00pm

Don't miss out – this is a first come first served event! It begins at 12.30pm and the city will be served from 2.00pm.

Partici-pastry

- Visit liftfest.org.uk for instructions on how to make your own iconic building out of food! Send photos of you creating and eating your building to news@liftfest.org.uk and we'll put them on our website. We'd also like to hear why you chose a particular building and what it felt like to eat it!
- Download audio interviews and learn more about the other ways you can interact with Eat London at liftfest.org.uk
- Join the Eat London community – take photos of the event, post them on Flickr.com tagged 'Eat London' to see who ate what! Or send them to news@liftfest.org.uk and we'll upload your text and images to the Lift website.

200 cooks from community groups across east and south east London have turned construction workers to imagine, design and build a 3D food map of central London – to be served up and eaten by its citizens.

Working with internationally renowned Spanish food artist, Alicia Rios and architect Barbara Ortiz, they have been imagining how food can become brick, glass, steel, grass and tarmac to create a spectacular model of London.

Eat London is the concept of Ali&Cia and this is its UK premiere. Eating the City was originally initiated and produced in 2004 in Melbourne, Australia by the City of Melbourne as part of its Community Cultural Development Program. Eat London features a soundtrack co-commissioned with Urban Development.

Chefs/architects:
Project Phakama UK • Year Ten Food Technology from Mulberry School for Girls • The Spicy South from Southwark • Bowbons from Bromley by Bow Centre • Tower Hamlets Summer University • The Factory Community Project • Saathi Resource Centre (Eastwards Trust) • Shoreditch Trust • Spitalfields City Farm and Coriander Club • Greenwich Vietnam Women's Group • Roj Women Association from Halkevi, Turkish and Kurdish Community Centre • Nu-Life Day Opportunities • SubCo • Organic Training Café at City and Islington College.

Lift

Lift, the London International Festival of Theatre, is a progressive biennial theatre festival which creatively explores local and global issues using theatre as a catalyst.

Currently in development, the Lift New Parliament is a portable meeting and performance space which will open as the centrepiece of the next Lift Festival in June 2008. It is a Lift initiative built in partnership with venues and their surrounding communities from across London, including the Southbank Centre, Theatre Royal Stratford East and Stratford Circus.

Eat London is a Lift New Parliament event.

liftfest.org.uk

How to get there

Tube: Charing Cross, Leicester Square, Piccadilly Circus.

Train: Charing Cross.

Bus: 3, 6, 9, 11, 12, 13, 15, 23, 24, 29, 53, 87, 88, 91, 139, 159, 176, 453. Also, buses 22 and 94 terminate at Piccadilly.

Access

Trafalgar Square is fully accessible. Lifts on the north terrace take visitors down to the toilets and café.

We would like to make Eat London accessible to all – please email us if you have any requirements we can address.

A large print version of this leaflet is available. For a copy please email info@liftfest.org.uk

