

BRING YOUR OWN
EDIBLE BRICK

EAT THE WALL

a project by Ali&Cía

Invitation:

Ali&Cía, the Madrid-based Eat Art group, want your help to cook and eat an edible wall. After contemplation it's time for consumption: from barrier to banquet. It's a call for an open society, a world without walls.

When? Sunday June 15 at 20hr

Where? Showroom SCALA
Friedrichstr. 112B
10117 Berlin / Mitte
/ U-Oranienburger Tor

Construction:

Our wall (1.8m long and 2m high) will employ a base structure of plastic crates on their sides and other containers all stacked up.

Participation:

Cook your own edible brick at home and bring it along on Sunday at 5pm for it to be put into the crates or stacked on top. You can use all types of containers but the more visible the food the better. One solution is an egg carton filled with your edible message in morsel code. All your bricks will be used to build the wall and then be eaten by everyone who comes.

Workshop:

All aspiring cooking constructors are invited to our workshop for more ideas on how to participate.

When? Tuesday June 10 at 8pm

Where? Greifswalder Str. 220
10405 Berlin / Prenzlauer Berg
/Tram M4

Ali&Cía has produced an extensive range of food related art projects around the world, including sensory concerts and phagy rituals where reality is reinterpreted through food and devoured collectively: www.alicia-rios.com
